#	Answer	Points
1	(B) George Rogers Clark	1 point
2	(A) A colonist who stayed loyal to the king	1 point
3	Claim: Colonists were angry because they were taxed without representation, so they responded with a boycott. Evidence: The newspaper says they were taxed by Parliament "in which we have not one voice" and asks families to "refuse to buy British cloth." Source: This is a primary source, a colonial newspaper from 1765, written to persuade Patriots, so it shows the colonists' point of view. Explain: This shows the idea of "no taxation without representation" and how boycotts pressured Britain to repeal the tax.	3 points: Claim: taxation without representation -> protest; Quotes the source; Source: 1765 newspaper, Patriot point of view.
